BLOOD PLASMA FOR CIVILIANS TO BE AVAILABLE

RED CROSS COMPLETING PLANS FOR THIS SERVICE

An announcement concerning the availability of dried blood plasma to civilians came today to Mrs. Vera Blanchard, executive secretary of the Putnam County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The thousands of Putnam County persons who contributed to the Red Cross blood bank, will be particularly gratified to learn that the surplus supply of prepared plasma will be made available in civilian medical practice as well as for use in veterans' hospitals. No charge is to be made for the product nor for its shipment from Red Cross headquarters.

A plan has been worked out, according to the notice Mrs. Blanchard has received, whereby distribution of the one and a quarter million packages of plasma will come from the various state departments of health throughout the country.

Further instructions concerning distribution of Red Cross plasma includes the following statement: "The state department of health it to make the plasma available to all physicians licensed to practice medicine and surgery and to all accepted hospitals for administering to any patient without charge to physician, hospital or patient either for the product or the cost of shipment."

The plan for the distribution of the surplus plasma has been concurred in by the Association of State and Territorial Health Officers, the American Medical Association and the American Hospital Association.

31 KENTUCKY MINERS FEARED DEAD IN BLAST

RESCUE CREWS WITHIN HALF MILE OF TRAPPED WORKMEN

PINEVILLE, Ky., Dec. 27.—(UP)—Blinding smoke drove rescue workers back today in their efforts to reach at least 31 men trapped in the Kentucky Straight Creek Coal Co.'s No. 1 mine.

The weary rescue crews had reached a point within a half mile of where the men were believed to be trapped two miles from the mouth of the sloping, mountainside shaft. A flareback of smoke drove them coughing from the mine and sent a tremor of fear through the women and children clustered about the entrance.

A mine official who went back into the mine with the crews said "We have been driven back at least 1,000 feet. I don't know how long it will take us to clear the pocket. There's no telling now when we will reach the men."

The blast which sealed off the men two miles inside the wood covered mountain, destroyed the electrical system that kept the ventilators going.

"The main delay right now is getting the ventilation going," said Frank Rhodes, neighboring mine superintendent and one of the rescue workers.

Rhodes said the temporary ventilation system set up to give the rescue crews fresh air "leaks a lot."

The rescue workers, on the job since yesterday morning, struggled through splintered timbers and fallen shale. Pools of chilled water wet them to the knees. The upper parts of their clothes were muddy from dust and sweat. The hot, smoke-filled air, reddened their skin.

"It's hot and smoky and it stinks," Rhodes said. "I know what hell is like."

The rescue teams were relieving each other at shorter intervals, pushing their equipment into the mine along the narrow gauge track that followed the slight grade to its bottom. The track was little damaged.

The rescue leaders did not know whether the smoke was from a pocket pierced in the debris, or whether another fire was raging in the depths of the mine.

"God only knows how long it will take to cover that last half mile," said Fred Slusher, company bookkeeper. Slusher said it was doubtful if any of the men were still alive.

The trapped miners' wives and children kept up their vigil in front of the gaping, smoke-blackened mouth of the shaft, tied to the bleak mountainside by a thin thread of hope.

Wrapped in tattered blankets, quilts and old coats, they stared at the hold at the base of the mountain where their husbands and fathers entered the shaft shortly before 7 a. m. yesterday. The explosion occurred only one hour and 33 minutes after the first shift reported for work after a Christmas holiday.

Faces were smudged with tears and smoke. Most of them had not eaten since breakfast yesterday. The mothers sometimes accepted a cup of coffee, or held the steaming tin cups to the lips of their children. Neighbors had kept the pots boiling over dull red fires through the night for the rescue workers toiling in the mine.

A company official said the 20-man rescue squads, working in relays were "within 3,000 feet of where the men are believed to have been working when the explosion came."

The trapped workers were believed to have been two miles back in the shaft, which slopes gradually downward under the mountain for two and a half miles from the entrance.

Most of the workers lived in Tenn., in the rolling hills of the southeast corner of Kentucky. The drab mining community of blackened shacks called Four Mile, because it is four miles from Pineville. The mine is 15 miles, because it is four miles from Pineville.

TRAFFIC MISHAP AT STREET INTERSECTION

Two men were hurt in a head-on crash of two automobiles at the intersection of Hanna and Bloomington streets at 5:40 p. m. Wednesday.

The cars were driven by Ernie Buis, 16 Beveridge street, and William Whitley, of Cloverdale, a soldier home on furlough. The icy condition of the pavement was the main cause of the accident.

George Williams, riding with Buis, suffered head injuries and a sprained back. Whitley sustained a cut on his right hand.

City police investigated the mishap which fortunately was the first traffic accident of any consequence in this city since the snow and ice covered the streets.

Airport Manager Rotary Speaker

The future of the Greencastle Airport was pictured in an interesting talk by William S. Colwell before the Greencastle Rotary Club on Wednesday. Mr. Colwell, manager of the Greencastle City Airport for Aero Services, was introduced by Jacob J. Eitel.

In his talk, Mr. Colwell stated that the local airport is definitely on the north-south and east-west airlines and its utilization in the future is almost assured. Present plans call for the erection of a shop for giving plane service, and, in this connection, Mr. Colwell said that some planes had to fly as far as Tulsa, Oklahoma for mechanical service. The four planes, consisting of three trainers and one cruiser, are being used for the training of twenty students, one half of which are ready to solo, and in providing taxi service to other cities.

Guests of Simpson Stoner were R. W. Niles and Clifford Earl, representatives of the Secured Casualty Co., of Indianapolis. W. I. Boyd of Wyoming, Delaware, and Randolph Bartlett, son of Dr. E. R. Bartlett.

Wm. Henry Todd, Greencastle R. 3, entered the Putnam County Hospital on Monday evening.

Urges Caution On New Year's Eve

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 27.—(UP)—Col. Austin R. Killian, state director of public safety, today issued specifications for a safe and "headacheless" New Year's eve.

He recommended that:

1. Celebrants confine holiday drinking to an enclosed space without a steering wheel. This will discourage drinking drivers and prevent accidents.
2. Fun makers not discharge shotguns or pistols. Clapping the hands together smartly creates a satisfactory noise without endangering lives. Besides, it keeps the hands warm.
3. Nightclubbers leave matches and lighters at the checkroom rather than chance a tragic bonfire.

Play it safe, Col. Killian urged, and make the traditional holiday observance a happy one.

SUFFERS INJURY

HIGHLY TRAINED MASTER EYE DOG IN CITY WITH HIS YOUNG MASTER DURING THE WEEK

Several people in Greencastle saw for the first time a Master Eye dog in action on Monday. The dog, "Lump" was owned by Richard Peters of Evanston, Ill., who was visiting here. Despite the ice and snow and the fact that he had never been in Greencastle before, the young man left the Eiteljorge home where he was a guest, early Monday and came up town. He never fell once and got around about as well as other people did who were slipping and skidding hither and yon on the icy pavements.

The dog, as long as he was in his harness, paid absolutely no attention to anyone other than his master, but once his harness was taken off, he was just another playful dog.

At one time while returning home on the ice Monday, the dog pulled his master as though he were on a sled, and both enjoyed the experience, it seemed. While in the Eiteljorge home Christmas Eve, the dog was visibly affected by a small kitten in the room. The kitten was running around and the dog was sitting beside his master who was playing the piano. The dog trembled and shook, so anxious was he to get after the kitten, but he never moved a fraction of an inch, because he wore his harness and is trained, once it is on, to obey only the words of his blind master.

Young Peters lost his eyesight over a period of time and has had the dog about two years. There is a difference between the Master Eye dog and the Seeing Eye dog, in that the former is more highly trained and there are fewer of them. Only the German Shepherds are used for training in the Master Eye category.

TRUMAN WILL MAKE RETURN TRIP FRIDAY

PRESIDENT VISITS FAMILY AND FRIENDS DURING XMAS HOLIDAY

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Dec. 27.—(UP)—President Truman plans to divide today—the last of his Christmas holiday—between his family at home, visiting friends here and in Kansas City, and having lunch with the news correspondents covering his trip.

He plans to leave by air for Washington tomorrow morning to return to problems of state. Mr. Truman still has to put the finishing touches on his early January state-of-the-union radio speech in which he will reveal directly to the people his proposed legislative program for the new congress. He also will confer with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes on the Moscow conference which ended yesterday, then tackle the pile of work that has mounted on his desk since he left it Christmas eve.

The President expected to reach Kansas City between 10 and 11 A. M. today. He was going to his office in the Federal building to visit with cronies until he joined his newspaper hosts at the Muehlebach Hotel for lunch. Like the rest of his activities here, there was no "program" planned for the lunch. The President simply had the time to sit down with newsmen for a mid-day meal. He has known most of the reporters since he was a Senator and he'll just be visiting with them.

So far, the President's visit has been typical of those of most men who work away from home and find it possible to make a quick Christmas visit. There has not been a single function requiring his attendance. His fellow-townsmen and neighbors realized he wanted a quiet stay at home and they let him have it.

THANKS TO THE PUBLIC

I want to thank the public for being so patient while this deep snow has had the county roads so near impassable. We have done our very best with the equipment that we have. Some may ask why we did not buy the snow plows before winter. I will explain this. We did not have the money in our appropriation for road tools. The last legislature passed a bill that the highway department could not transact money from one appropriation to another. We had to wait until the first of the year so as to reallocate the funds left over from this year into the appropriation for road tools. This bill has handicapped the highway departments all over Indiana. At the Highway Supervisor's convention at Indianapolis it was agreed to be the most unjust bill that has been passed in years. A supervisor in one county in the state remarked that $50,000.00 had to be carried over on account of not having the privilege of transfer. Our county will have around $25,000.00 left over to reallocate this coming year.

"Some one will possibly ask why didn't you make your budget more accurate? I prepared this year's budget in July, 1944 for the year of 1945 as according to law. I do not believe there is anyone that can see far enough ahead to prepare a highway budget fifteen months ahead. The law in the past was very fine and just. It gave the county authority to ask for transfer of funds which the county council never did turn down.

There are over 800 miles of county highway to maintain and around 5,000 bridges or culverts with 50 per cent of them in bad condition. If anyone has a complaint to make just notify me or our commissioners and we will do our best to make the repairs needed. Again I want to thank the public, especially the mail carriers as they have been very considerate.

Ray Vaughan,
Co. Highway Supervisor.

TO ESTABLISH COMMISSION ON ATOMIC ENERGY

SEC. BYRNES REVEALS ACTION BY BIG 3 MINISTERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(UP)—The Moscow foreign ministers conference agreed to create a four-power control council for Japan patterned in general after the present control council for Germany, it was learned today.

The United States, the British empire, Russia and China would share authority equally in the control council. Each would have a veto power.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur would remain as supreme allied commander for Japan to carry out the directives of the council, it was learned.

MOSCOW, Dec. 27.—(UP)—Secretary of State James F. Byrnes revealed today that the foreign ministers of the United States, Great Britain and Russia had agreed to set up a commission on atomic energy.

The news that the Big Three had reached an agreement on atomic energy was given by Byrnes at a press conference which wound up the 12-day meeting of the foreign ministers here.

Byrnes, unsmiling and weary after a sleepless night and 24 hours of virtually uninterrupted work, dropped a verbal atomic bomb of his own at a press conference he held before departing by plane for Washington by way of Berlin and Paris.

"When you read about atomic energy in the communiques providing for the establishment of a commission, you will see that no other phase of the subject was discussed," he said.

Thus came the first official word that Russia, the United States and Britain had come to a meeting of the minds on the atomic problem, one of the gravest confronting the troubled post-war world and apparently the biggest single bone of contention among the Big Three.

While Byrnes disclosed the establishment—proposed or actual—of a commission on atomic energy, he veered away from the subject without a clue as to its nature or scope.

MOSCOW, Dec. 27.—(UP)—The Big Three Foreign Ministers conference ended shortly before dawn today, and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes announced that decisions had been reached on many problems including the Atomic bomb.

Byrnes told correspondents no secret agreements had been reached.

A communique covering conference results will be released in Moscow, Washington and London at 6 a. m. Friday, Byrnes said.

(London sources said the communique will be released at 3 a. m. GMT Friday. That is 6 a. m. Moscow time, and 10 p. m. Thursday night Eastern Standard Time.)

Meeting correspondents at 7:30 a. m., shortly before taking off for Washington by air, Byrnes said:

"There is no agreement on any subject which is not covered by the communique. I say this because some people are always anxious about secret agreements. When you read the communique item regarding Atomic energy you will see there was not any other phase discussed."

The big navy plane which was flown into the city airport last week has been admired by many who have inspected it. This picture was taken Sunday, when the mercury slid away down, so far as the cameraman was concerned. The cold wind "froze" the camera and the picture was no as good as it could have been. However, it was too cold to wait longer for second poses. The picture shows left to right, Mayor Ballard, Councilman Craver, J. B. Crosby, Councilman Bryan, Councilman Thornton, H. H. AUTO STRIKE SHIFTS BACK TO CAPITAL

NEW MOVES IN WALKOUT
ARE UP TO WASH-INGTON

DETROIT, Dec. 27.—(UP)—Further moves for an early settlement of the 37-day-old General Motors strike shifted back to Washington today.

Negotiations between the company and the CIO Auto Workers, whose 175,000 GM members struck Nov. 21, were at a standstill until tomorrow's scheduled meeting with the President's fact-finding board.

GM President Charles E. Wilson deferred announcement until 5 p. m. today whether the company would appear before the board. Walter P. Reuther, UAW vice president, said he would attend.

As negotiations over the UAW's strike-enforced demands for a 30 per cent raise from GM reached a standstill, these developments focused attention on the auto industry labor front:

1. The Kaiser-Frazer Corporation resumes contract talks with the UAW today.

2. Ford Motor Company announced that 80,000 workers again would be idle from Saturday until Jan. 2 because of material shortages and inventory. A similar holiday shutdown ended yesterday.

3. Negotiations between the UAW and Ford of Canada were scheduled to start today in Windsor, Ont.

The question of wages was not reached yesterday in the talk between representatives of General Motors and the UAW, although the fact-finding board set a deadline of tomorrow for a report of progress.

After yesterday's meeting, Reuther said that "we have made no progress here which would not justify the resumption of the fact-finding meetings in Washington Friday."

The company made no announcement after the meeting, but Reuther said only local plant disputes were discussed.

Reuther added that the company representatives agreed to construct plant managers to meet with UAW local union officials and discuss secondary issues, such as working conditions, shift preferences and elimination of pay incentives.

He saw no hope for a resumption of wage talks before the board session in Washington tomorrow.

It was pointed out that wage negotiations might be resumed in Washington between meetings with the fact-finding board, if the company decided to send representatives to confer with the President's panel.

Meanwhile, strikers returned to the picket lines at the company's 93 plants across the country. They prevented a company executive from driving his automobile into the garage of the Buick plant at Flint, Mich.

About half of GM's 50,000 office workers were back at their jobs, under permission by pickets to go through their lines. Others were turned back at plant gates at a dozen plants.

A three-judge circuit court at Pontiac, Mich., was to continue hearing an injunction suit today, brought by the company against three UAW locals on complaints of massed picketing.

Auto Phones Soon In Use

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(UP)—American motorists may soon be able to telephone from an automobile to any number in the nation-wide Bell system.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company announced today that extensive trials of mobile radiotelephone service were being planned for three highway routes. Urban radiotelephone service will begin within a few months in some cities, the company said.

The highway trials will be made on routes totalling nearly 1,000 miles between Chicago and St. Louis (via Ottawa, Peoria and Springfield, Ill.) New York, Albany and Buffalo and New York and Boston.

Application for stations on the Illinois route has already been made to the federal communications commission by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company. Applications to other routes will be made shortly, with service in each case beginning several months after authorization is granted.

Here's how it will work:

A person calling an automobile first gets long distance, then asks for the "mobile service operator" and gives her the auto's call number. That operator routes the call over telephone wires to a transmitting-receiving station near the highway. From there it is relayed by radio to the traveling automobile.

The driver both hears and sees his phone ring, picks the receiver from the dashboard and says "hello." A handy button switches him from listening to talking at will.

The motorist who wants to make a call just picks up his telephone and pushes the talk button. That signals the operator who reverses the above procedure to reach his number.

The company said it planned to make trials under actual operating conditions with the cooperation of truck, bus and moving van companies which have indicated interest in the plans.

BIRDS TO BE OLDER

In an effort to increase the Indiana game bird population, clubs raising quail and pheasants under 1946 contracts with the Indiana Department of Conservation will hold their birds until 12 weeks of age instead of releasing them at eight weeks as in the past.

Donald R. Hughes, director of the fish and game division of the department, announced the program today.

After an exhaustive study of the situation, Hughes recommended the change to the control board of the department. The board adopted it after it was approved by the State Conservation Advisory Committee at its quarterly meeting early in December.

In discussing the new program, Hughes said: "Complaints from Hoosier hunters have been increasing for several years because of quail and pheasants the division has been pouring annually into Indiana covers."

"Field reports indicate this failure is due to the birds being liberated before they are old enough to fend for themselves," Hughes said.

"This conclusion," he continued, "is born out by a detailed study of the pheasant in this state, the results of which were published in a series of articles in the last three issues of Outdoor Indiana, the department's magazine."

"These articles showed a steady increase in the pheasant population until the practice of releasing chicks at eight weeks was started. Since that time the number of these birds found by hunters has just as steadily declined. This decline was in spite of the fact that more and more birds were being liberated each year."

Hughes said this experience with pheasants was practically the same for quail.

Payment to clubs for each bird released will be jumped from 50 cents to 75 cents. This increase is to take care of the extra four weeks of feeding required, Hughes said.

TO SPEED UP PEARL HARBOR INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 — (UP)—Members of the Pearl Harbor committee today studied plans for speeding up the investigation when public hearings resume next week.

Sen. Scott W. Lucas, D., Ill., suggested that the questioning of witnesses be assigned among different members of the 10-man joint congressional committee.

He planned to submit the recommendation to chairman Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., who returned yesterday from his mother's funeral at Paducah, Ky.

Rep. Bertrand W. Gearhart, R., Calif., said he was willing to do anything feasible to speed up the inquiry but he doubted the wisdom of the Lucas proposal.

"I'm afraid that would serve more to restrict the investigative functions of the committee," Gearhart commented. "I still think that we can wind up the hearings about Feb. 1 without any restrictions on the interrogation of witnesses by any member who has a question pertinent to the investigation."

Lucas said he thought the hearings could be speeded without sacrificing the right of committee members to ask any pertinent questions.

During the first five weeks each witness was subject to questioning by each of the 10 committee members after preliminary examination by committee counsel.

Lucas suggested that hearings could be speeded by assigning the examination of specific witnesses to different committee members.

Here's how it would work in the case of Adm. Harold R. Stark, former chief of naval operations, who is scheduled to be the next witness when hearings resume Dec. 31.

Two members—one Democrat and one Republican—would be assigned to handle questioning of Stark. They would concentrate on queries which would bring out Stark's story of the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Those two would then be responsible for the major part of Stark's examination. Other committee members would be entitled to suggest questions or interpose a question or two during the course of the examination.

Meanwhile, other committee members would be assigned to prepare themselves for the examination of later witnesses.

"It would give each committee member an opportunity to prepare himself for examination of the witnesses," Lucas contended. "It would eliminate the repetition which has consumed so much time during the first phase of the investigation."

Mr. Truman

Mr. Truman told newsmen that today would be no different. The lunch with the reporters came about as casually as any affair could. He had told them that in an informal press conference yesterday that he had no lunch plans and he was asked if he would join the reporters. Just like that, he grinned and said he'd like very much to eat on the newsmen. A wag in the group reminded him that he would be an excellent item to put on the newspaper expense accounts. He laughed and agreed.

Despite the outlook for heavy snow today, the President still expected to return to Washington in his C-54 transport plane, the Sacred Cow. He pointed out that the flight would be made only if weather permits and he would save with prevailing westerly winds in considerable strength, he would be boosted along so fast that he might easily reach the capital in 3 1/2 hours, he said. A train would take 25 hours to make the trip.

Last night, Mr. Truman varied his plan a little when he drove to Grandview, his mother's home town, to attend a closed meeting of the Masonic Lodge.

Big Three

Their 12-day conference at 4 a. m., after an almost continuous session of 13 1/2 hours which began at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday.

"It has been a very constructive conference," Byrnes said, "not only because of the settlement of many problems, but because cordial relations have been established between representatives of the three countries giving hope of settlement of other problems in the same spirit."

(His reference to the atomic energy statement appeared to mean that only part of the question was discussed—probably plans for control, rather than detailed scientific information about how the bomb was made.)

"Outside of matters covered in the communique, the Foreign Ministers discussed a number of other matters, and an exchange of views clarified subjects for the governments so it will be easier for them to secure action in the future," Byrnes said.

Byrnes was extremely tired from the long final meeting, held in the Spiridonovka Palace. It ran from 2:30 to 9 p. m., then resumed at 11 p. m. after a two-hour dinner recess and continued until 4 a. m.

All essential business was settled by midnight. After that it was a question of arranging technicalities and polishing translations.

Secretary of States James F. Byrnes urged more and more speed as the record session dragged on, for he was anxious to board his waiting airplane at dawn and take off for the United States. He wanted to reach Washington Friday.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

she's as lively as a youngster—
Now her backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, nervousness, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty urination with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's gives happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

WOUNDED CHILD DIES

The child's father, Owen Wilson, ended his life after killing his wife and wounding his daughter. Edith had been paralyzed since the shooting.

School Racket Warning Issued

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The National Education Assn. warned today that state authorities must be on the alert for "private profit-seeking schools" seeking to enroll veterans as students to get federal tuition payments under the GI Bill of Rights.

The association cited two factors opening the way for private school operators to get high tuition fees at the expense of the federal government.

First, it blamed the government for failing to put up enough money for education of veterans in public institutions.

Second, it objected to "laxity of standards set up by some states for the approval of institutions offering educational programs for veterans."

Under the GI bill, veterans get subsistence payments while going to school and the Veterans Administration pays tuition fees directly to the institution.

Thus, public schools and colleges, which have low tuition rates or none at all, benefit little from the program, while private institutions collect regular fees at higher rates.

This system works against public colleges which adapt their services to the needs of returning veterans, the association said, and they receive less than the cost of educating the veterans.

The association said veterans will need special courses, because "war is a maturing experience." "Whatever their ages in years, the returned service men must have an adult type of education," the statement said. "Textbooks must be written on adult levels, and directed toward adult problems. The adaptation necessary to veterans' needs are so fundamental that some school systems have created veterans' high school in which only service men will be enrolled."

WASHINGTON Report

Gridiron Club Dinners
To Be Revived Jan. 15

Women Are Barred From
Newsmen's Famed Party

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Journalism (dining-out division) is about to be itself again in the national capital.

The Gridiron Club is on the verge of waking from its duration slumber. On Jan. 15, after a sleep of several years, this club of sharp-witted newspaper men will hold a colorful dinner, seasoned with the cayenne and tabasco of satire.

Turning big shots and big events this way and that on a red-hot griddle, the 50 or more members of the famous dining club will make things sizzle in the old familiar fashion. As the skits scheduled to form the motif of the dinner are being rehearsed, it is evident that censorship is off.

I wish I could go to that dinner. I'd like to find out if the gentlemen of the press are more adroit in the use of the stiletto than are the ladies of the press.

Gridiron dinners, according to custom, are held twice a year. Once in December and again on some early spring evening.

No women are ever invited to the dinners, although it is reported that Congresswoman Jeannette Rankin was once the guest of Member Harry Brown.

It is also reported that in the memory of some elder members, the early president of the club did sanction the presence of ladies. Not at the banquet table, Oh dear, no!—But upstairs in a balcony, where they could be concealed behind potted palms.

I have never heard that this experiment in letting the little woman in on things was too successful. Some of the members said it would have been swell if the women hadn't kept on asking: "What was funny about your show?"

Everybody who isn't a woman knows how awful it is to explain a joke to anybody who isn't a man. And when it is a political joke—an international joke that has to be explained—that's too much to ask of the most devoted of husbands.

The president of the United States, the members of the cabinet, ambassadors, big business, stars of military, the arts and letters will be among the dinner guests and watch each other being roasted and laugh while the sizzling is searing their own skins.

AT LAST I've gotten around to a party that was held for the "Lady Press." Mrs. Truman gave a buffet supper in his honor. The party was at the White House. No gentlemen admitted. Just us girls.

Don't tell me that the sexes aren't being segregated. And no wonder womankind has brought the gloomy situation on its own head. And I mean head. Look at the idiotic hats women are sticking on top of their wispy hair-dos. Victorian—every coy inch of them!

Bonnets and things tied under the chin and back hair drooping over the meekly arched neck. I'm not a feminist. I do think we've gone a trifle too cute—us girls.

"Befo' the wah, my dear, your father and I . . ." Southern belles—that's what we're trying to be. In an atomic age. We're playing dumb while Rome burns. I almost agree with I. A. R. Wylie in her tart discussion of "The Little Woman." She says: "Women are the eternal amateurs. . . . Their attitude toward themselves and their jobs damns them to second rate-ness. . . . Neither the vote too easily won, or the war fought at too great a distance have affected American women to any encouraging extent. . . . Woman has stood by and applauded while the other half of her species dealt her civilization blow from which she may never recover. . . . If anything is to be saved, the Little Woman will have to move out of the nest faster and get down into the dusty arena with her sleeves rolled up. . . ."

Cubs Compete In Net Meet

The Tiger Cubs of Greencastle high school, after the Christmas layoff, will get back to the basketball wars Saturday when they compete in a tournament at the Warren Central gym in Indianapolis.

The Cubs, still seeking their first win of the season, will go into the tourney a decided underdog in the betting odds. They are lined up with some mighty stiff opponents including Washington's Continentals, Manual and the host team, Warren Central.

Drawing for the meet will take place at 12:45 p. m. and the first tilt will start at 1:30 p. m. The second contest is scheduled for 3 o'clock. A consolation game between the two afternoon losers will get underway at 7 p. m., followed by the final encounter to determine the tournament championship.

The next home battle for the Cubs will be played Wednesday evening when their traditional rivals, the Brazil net tossers, led by Coach "Babe" Wheeler, invade our fair city. This affair should bring out the biggest crowd of the winter campaign.

PROSPECTS ARE GLOOMY FOR MEN'S CLOTHING

Shirts, shorts, pajamas and all the other traditional clothing gifts for men would be really welcome this year—if they were only available. Supplies of such items promise to be little better for some time, points out Miss Meta Martin, Purdue University extension clothing specialist.

While it had been hoped that military releases of garments and fabrics and the results of greater civilian production would be in evidence in stores by Christmas, there seems to be no indication that the hope will be realized. New evaluation of the supply and demand picture presents little but gloom. Shirts and other men's cotton wear probably will not be in stores in quantity before late spring or early summer—and by then demand will be too great for store shelves to stock up anything like a normal reserve.

Meantime, says Miss Martin, there appears to be no help in the situation other than giving every garment excellent care and wearing it as long as it retains a shred of usefulness.

OBITUARY

Emerson Etheridge, son of Wm. Irwin and Letitia, McAninch Buis, was born in Jefferson Township, Putnam county, Indiana, Aug. 9, 1865, and departed this life Dec. 20, 1945, at the age of 80 years, 4 months and 11 days.

When he was a small boy the family moved to Marion Township where he spent the remainder of his life, engaged in farming.

He was one of a family of seven children, two of whom, Mrs. Mary Ellen Masten and Mrs. Laura Reed, have preceded him in death. One brother, Everett of Marion Township, two half-brothers, Edward of Clayton; Otho of Stilesville; and a half-sister, Mrs. Dessie Bryan of Newcastle, survive.

On Nov. 2, 1887, he was united in marriage to Minnie May Ruark by whose side he walked in life's pathway for over 58 years, and who is left to grieve the loss of a devoted companion.

Five children were born to this union all of whom survive. They are, Oran E., of Marion township; Almon R., of Peoria, Ill.; Mrs. Glen Burgess of Coatesville; Mrs. O. H. McNary of Vevey; and Berl E. of Marion, Ind.

There are nine grandchildren, including Marion Burgess, still serving his country on Luzon in the Philippines and one little great-granddaughter, who will keenly miss grandfather's kind and gentle ways.

His love for his family was deep and abiding, and the frequent visits of children and grandchildren in his home was one of his greatest delights.

He was a member of no organized religious group, but believed in God and the old Baptist faith. The life he lived was a living testimonial of his strength of character. "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments."

Dad is gone—Oh, how we loved him.

How we tried to keep him here!

But life ends for all earth's children.

None can stop the falling tear.

Quiet was his life, and gentle, Rarely were his words unkind, Honest, true, upright, unselfish. Traits we'll ever hold in mind.

Love, alone, endures forever, It will last through good or ill; Though he's stepped beyond the threshold, May it's chains unite us still.

CAED OF THANKS

We wish to thank all those who assisted us in any way during the illness and death of our dear husband and father. Especially do we thank Dr. Dettloff, Mayne and Frank Reed, Rev. Rissler for his consoling words and Mr. Hurst for his singing. We appreciated too, all the beautiful floral offerings, Mrs. Minnie Buis and family

Jap Receives Life Sentence

YOKOHAMA, Dec. 27 (UP)—Tatsuo (Little Glass Eye) Tsuchiya, forst Japanese war criminal to be tried in Japan, was sentenced today to life imprisonment for beating to death an American prisoner of war.

An eight-man U. S. military commission convicted Tsuchiya on three charges of "cruel, inhuman and brutal atrocities and other offenses against certain prisoners" at Mitsushima camp where he served as a guard.

Chief Prosecutor Maj. Louis Offen of Atlanta, Ga., had demanded the death penalty. He charged in closing arguments that Tsuchiya "enjoyed seeing American prisoners suffer."

Tsuchiya was convicted specifically of beating to death Pfc. Robert Gordon Teas, Streator, Ill., beating and torturing another soldier and forcing the prisoners to line up and slap each other. He was found innocent of three charges that he beat and tortured three other American prisoners.

The sentence was announced by Commission President Col. Oliver E. Trechter of Los Angeles who said the verdict was reached on a secret written ballot.

Tsuchiya stood at attention as the verdict was read and his expression never changed as a translator repeated the phrases in Japanese.

Would Check Vets' Hospitals

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(UP)—Rep. Marion T. Bennett, R. Mo., proposed today that the House veterans committee be given the permanent right to stage periodic surprise "check-up" visits to veterans hospitals.

Bennett said he had found evidence of past beatings and mistreatment of veteran-patients but that most of these abuses had been corrected. He said the possibility of surprise visits by a congressional committee would do much to prevent their recurrence.

"That would keep hospital administrators on their toes," he said. "They'd have to keep everything in good order if they knew that veterans committee members could drop in at any time to see if anything is wrong."

Bennett is a member of a five-man veterans subcommittee which is now preparing a report on a year-long investigation of veterans hospitals. The House authorized the inquiry after several newspapers and magazines charged that veterans were being given "third rate" medical care.

Bennett said that he intends to ask that his permanent "check-up" idea be included in the official report to the House. "No one can deny that the mere fact that the committee was investigating the hospitals forced administrators to improve conditions in them," he said. "For this reason at least, the committee should be allowed to retain its powers of investigation indefinitely."

Under the present rules of the House, the veterans committee would lose this power at the end of the year.

Bennett said the subcommittee would probably submit its report soon after the Congress reconvenes Jan. 14.

CORSICANA, Tex. (UP) — Blackbird blackout?

A 21-minute interruption of the electric-power service in a sizable section of central Texas was blamed on a flock of birds. They swooped down and came to rest on a main switch between generating plants of the Texas Power and Light Co., at Trinidad, causing a flash and disruption of power flow on main electric circuits.

MRS. DYE MAKES OVERALLS LAST

Pitcher, Oklahoma.—Mrs. L. E. Dye has had a lot of experience in washing overalls for five boys and her husband. She has found out how to make them last longer. Here is what she says in a letter to Faultless Starch.

"I cannot wash without Faultless Starch. You bet I think it will make overalls last longer and look ten times better. I know. We raised five boys, so I know what Faultless starch means to overalls. Have used it as far back as I can remember and my mother used it, too. I can't say enough for Faultless Starch."

Now there is an important message for anyone who has overalls in her wash. Mrs. Dye says that Faultless Starch makes overalls wear longer (that's mighty important, today) and look "ten times better" (and that's important, too).

HOW TO STARCH OVERALLS

Overalls, work pants, wash shirts — and children's clothes usually get very, very dirty. Sometimes it takes a lot of rubbing on a scrub-board to take the dirt out. And everyone knows that rubbing wears out clothes as much as washing them does. But when you give them a LIGHT starching with Faultless Starch you save a lot of that rubbing. You see — Faultless Starch penetrates the fabric — so dirt can't grind in so easily. And Faultless Starch dissolves instantly in water and carries most of the dirt right out with it. So when you starch other things, be sure to give overalls, work pants, children's clothes, etc. a very light starching at the same time. You'll notice the difference when you wash them!

SO SMOOTH TO WEAR

The men will really like it, too. The fabric feels smooth and slick — not scratchy and rough. They won't chafe as much around the neck and arms. It's a wonderful relief to wear smooth, slick work clothes! Try it, this washday. And be sure to use Faultless Starch.

OBITUARY

Sarah Jane Cooper, daughter of Dr. J. B. and Lillitha Grimes, was born in Owen County, September 14th, 1859. She spent her girlhood days in Owen, later moving to Mt. Meridian in Putnam county, Indiana.

She united with the Mt. Meridian Methodist Church at the age of sixteen, later moving her membership to the Locust St. Church in Greencastle.

On December 24th, 1878, she was married to John F. Cooper, and to this union were born three children, Mrs. Paul Hurst, Mrs. Theodore Hurst, and William Albert, the latter two having preceded her in death.

Grandma Cooper was dearly loved by all her neighbors and friends, and in turn loved them all.

She gave inspiration to all who knew her, as they beheld her sweet personality and winning ways.

She was a lover of flowers all through her life, and they proved to be a hobby within her home.

She passed away December 19th, 1945 at the Putnam county hospital at the age of 86 years, 3 months and 5 days.

She leaves to mourn, one daughter and one brother, John Grimes of Indianapolis, and several nieces and nephews, 12 grandchildren, and 22 great grandchildren, two of which are in the Armed Services of their Country at the present time.

Neath our eyes she faded slowly,

Clothing Shortage Not Enough Apparel
Getting No Better To Meet Demands

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The clothing shortage is going to get worse before it gets better. OPA Chief Bowles asserted recently that the government should have rationed clothing long ago. Now the program, with its emphasis on low cost items, is in real danger of falling apart.

There just isn't enough apparel to meet demands. War veterans by the hundred thousands are taking heavily of available stocks. Moreover, production isn't up to needed levels.

Workers are slow in returning from war wages to these lower paid jobs, even though producers are fully reconverted to peace-time production.

In addition, the government charges, some converters are holding up production until after January 1 to take advantage of tax exemptions.

The public will just have to wait until mass production again gets under way.

THE RED STAMP is due back soon, but not the meat rationing variety. It's coming back to do duty on letters at a two cent rate. It disappeared from this role early in the defense program. A bill to reinstate it as legitimate postage to move first class mail under one-half ounce within towns and cities has passed the Senate. House adoption is believed virtually certain.

ADMINISTRATION LEADERS have ceased calling the "Big Three" meeting at Potsdam the Potsdam conference. The official title is now the "Berlin conference." An Army officer present wouldn't like to venture the guess publicly, but he suspects that the real reason is that the conference actually was held at a hitherto unmentioned German town called Babelsburg.

For a time the Army's public relations officers—and this was before the foreign ministers found it impossible to agree on what the Potsdam declaration said—feared that columnists might leap on the name of the real site of the meeting.

There only remained the obvious conclusion that the same columnists might begin referring to "The Tower of Babelsburg."

THE POSSIBILITY that James Forrestal may resign as secretary of navy is only in the rumor stage. But a fight for the succession is already under way.

Ed Pauley, President Truman's reparations agent in Germany and Japan, is leading in private discussion as a probable successor. A strong congressional group is boosting Representative Sheppard (D) of California, chairman of the House subcommittee on naval appropriations who is being supported by a substantial congressional bloc.

The Navy is quietly interested in learning the convictions of any prospective candidate on unification of the armed forces. They want someone as adamant against it as is the present secretary.

REASON BEHIND President Truman's coordinating of various intelligence units of the nation are slowly coming to light in the Pearl Harbor investigations. It reveals considerable feuding in Hawaii between Army and Navy intelligence on one hand and the FBI on the other. This lasted right through the dangerous days when spy-combed Honolulu was a major source of Tokyo information.

Four days before Pearl Harbor the FBI tapped a telephone call between a "Mr. Mori" in Honolulu and a Jap officer in Tokyo. The former discussed in flower language code the disposition of the main United States forces. The various types of flowers apparently referred to different types of warships. Without even using code, they discussed United States Army strength and diplomatic affairs.

Growing day by day more frail;
Bearing sweetly all her sufferings

Without murmur, moan or wail;
Earth has lost its look of gladness,

Heaven seems to us more bright,
Since the spirit of our loved one
Took its homeward, happy flight.
And we long to cross the river,
Long to rest upon that shore,
There to see, to know our loved one

With our Saviour evermore,
Lord give us strength our loss to bear,
And lead us in thy heavenly way
That we may meet our loved one there
Realms of everlasting day.

Especially we want to thank the hospital staff, nurses, Doctors, Mr. and Mrs. Rector, the Ministers and those who assisted in clearing the road to the cemetery and preparing the grave. PROBE COMPLAINTS

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 27.—(UP)—The Public Service Commission prepared today to investigate complaints of electric power failures and inadequate service on lines of the Southern Indiana Power Company, which serves 11 counties.

Lawrence Carlson of the PSC said that a hearing would be held after an investigation by the engineering staff. He said that a majority of the complaints charged inadequate service in repairing lines after storms.

Spokesmen for the Southeastern Company said that employees were working "day and night" to keep the lines in condition.

KIDNAPING CHARGED

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(UP)—A federal grand jury will be asked today to return a kidnaping indictment against Robert F. Smith, 21, army deserter and confessed slayer of Roy Gordon Beh near Holland, Mich.

District Attorney J. Albert Woll said he would attempt to obtain prosecution here of Smith on a charge of kidnaping Jerome Brennan, Gary, Ind., rather than release him to Michigan officials on the murder charge.

Unemployment Legislation Keeps Senate Groups Busy

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Some high-powered Congressional gentlemen who might ordinarily be mending campaign fences back home, or dozing beside vacation trout streams, are now stewing in Washington in the whirl pool of "unemployment legislation."

You'd almost think the word "unemployment" and the millions to whom it will apply soon, had never been heard of before. That is you'd think this, if you were attending one or two of the Senatorial hearings on full employment or unemployment compensation, now in progress on the Hill.

You'd almost think, also, judging from the intensity with which the subject is being suddenly considered, as if the United States expected the war to go on forever and military pay checks and military jobs to keep millions of Americans fed, clothed and busy.

Of course, you know the setting for the Congressional hearing. The members of the committee anxious to add to its sum of knowledge before it makes any recommendation for the passage of a particular bill, sit in state in the particular committee room.

Sit in state is right. Usually the committee members are elevated on a kind of dais. Like Olympians. The head man, or chairman of the committee (call him Zeus), occupies the center of the dais.

Below the dais the apologetic witnesses place themselves before a microphone. Within range of flash light bulbs. Within hearing of the press table and within view of the curious public on the back rows. While struggling to ingratiate themselves and their causes with the committee, the witnesses try desperately to hold tempers that might be sharply riled at the machine gunning administered by cross-examining committee members.

I shouldn't have been surprised if Senator Kilgore, while testifying on his own (S1274) employment compensation bill yesterday, had thrown an inkwell or two or three at Senators Vandenberg, Taft, Byrd, Lucas and McMahon. The gentleman from West Virginia believes, speaking roughly, in giving almost everybody without a job $25 a week for 26 weeks, as a "stop gap."

Perhaps I have been too liberal in my interpretation of S1274. Anyhow, on one day's hearing it got shot full of large round holes by such inquisitorial interruptions as these:

1. Will the states already providing their own unemployment compensation slide out of such responsibility and let the federal government foot the over-all bill?
2. If you consider the rise in the cost of living—41 per cent on food and 45 per cent in clothing—since 1933 for this group, why not raise the salaries of employed federal workers who have to cope with inadequate funds right now?
3. Are you sure this $25 a week will end at 26 weeks or is it one of those perpetual run-arounds?
4. Why should not every government employee on finding himself out of a job be entitled to this compensation? Do you mean to add this to his pension?
5. Does this measure apply to war workers alone? What, anyhow, is a war worker?
6. Is not a clerk in any government office or any outfit which has contributed in any way to the war effort, a war worker? As much of a war worker as an employee in a munitions plant?

The debate of "What Is a War Worker?" went on for a long time. It may be flourishing yet. If the hearing has not broken up in a general squabble.

CUPOLA ON CABOSES LOSES TO BAY WINDOW

CHICAGO (UP)—The time-honored rooftop cupola on the railroad caboose is on its way out.

The Southern Pacific Railroad is the latest to announce that its new cabooses will be built with a three-sided bay window extending three feet out from each side of the car. The company has ordered 50 all-steed cars of this type, which are said to afford trainmen a better vantage point from which to watch the train's operation.
